I'll even go first... (this is from my bachelor party... we rented a bus to cart our drunk asses around)

Hope you like gay guys, hehehe!

But I'll play.

Last summer, Mount Yonah, GA-- the LAST place you should climb in the middle of the summer in the south.

From: Vancouver, B.C. They're quite good at getting people to volunteer, particularly attractive young women.

Another is "Jail and Bail", where they get the police to come and drag you away from work (with the connivance of your employer), and you're held until your friends ransom you. If they do. They usually do this to prominent figures, and it's broadcast on the CBC, for the amusement of all.

Politically of course. :-)

I hardly have any pictures of me climbing but I'll scan the couple I do have and put them up (someone please remind me, what's the best way to post a pic).

I have one of myself and another of Claude Fiddler bouldering in the Arboretum at Columbia College (Tuolumne County) in 1975. Some of me bouldering on Mt Diablo, and one or two of me on the Mexican volcanoes, along with a group shot taken on Orizaba, or is it Popo? (Ed, take note, Rob Grandfield will be in the pic, say hello to him for me and tell him I will look him up in July/August after I move back home).

In the meantime, this will have to do I guess.

That headshot was taken a couple of years ago for free. Not a good idea to try and do professional acting with an amateur headshot.

I think so. He did help keep order about the whole thing. Problem was that when we were not looking, he ate the ice cream wedding cake during the reception (Wallpack Inn). We got married at the Watergate lake shore inside the Delaware Water Gap. Just as we completed our vows, all of the Canada geese started honking en masse and at once. To this day, I am suspicious that someone suddenly started feeding them because it was just all too coincidental. You just can't get married without inviting Bear 46 to the affair.

i was wondering and i thought you might be, but i wasn't sure, i keep meaning to email you and ask.

YES that's my family!!! i didn't start going till my grandma brought me when i was ten, cuz my parents didnt go.

sometimes in the meadows, my grandma still asks, sometimes, "remember nita and andy i wonder whatever happened to them?"

at my grandma's house, there is a picture of you with us, bringing my tenth birthday cake! my first double digit!!! you put m&m's on it! i never ever forgot. next time i go over there i'll borrow the pics and find a scanner.

oh my gosh! my cousin and i thought you were the coolest EVER - remember when you showed us your tent cabin and read us that story? we were SO flattered by your attention and wanted to be just like you. You TOTALLY inspired us and both of us worked in yosemite when we were older - me in the valley and my cuz @ white wolf.

she loves you too! i will call her a little later today and pass on your message - should i pass on your email address too? my grandma is totally savvy and hip! she totally uses the internet.

and as for those pics - well i think you look pretty! but how about if i email them to you FIRST and then f you like, YOU can post? i will be there for easter in a couple of weeks - she loves for us to come to her church (episcopal! none of that conservative evangelical stuff for our fam!) and i will borrow them and find a scanner.

so i'll be at g.ma's in a couple of weeks - expect them around easter, 'kay?

do you ever go to the meadows? i forget what dates we're goin' next summer but if you're there at the same time you guys should come hang with us!!!

i'll give my g-ma your email addy - is that okay? i'm sure she'd LOVE to hear from you. we love you too! seriously i wanted to be just like you! i havn't worked in the meadows, it has never worked with my schedule - i almost got a job there when i worked in yos but i had to leave before they closed so they gave me a job cashiering in the valley... i still kinda wanna do time in the meadows but i am think i'm doing other stuff this summer... and i don't really fit in with the climber/stoner crowd at all, i'm too dorky for them!

You know, what with the medium somewhat dictating the flavor of the interaction, the whole cyberspace thing creates an ambience unlikely to be reflected quite the same way on the "outside". This forum is a fantastically mercurial environment with lots of folks chiming in on the same thought stream sometimes simultaneously and often in kaleidoscopic fashion.

Were we all to get together at once, we'd therefore meet on fresh terms and it would flow just fine in that sense because this is such a diverse yet cohesively bonded group here, with a common set of experiences and natural values, but it would be different.

Could someone please get Vern to get Fiddler involved in this, and what about Jim Keating? About a year ago Roy McClenahan sent me contact details for Claude and we e-mailed each other once, and now I have to get off my proverbial asssss and get ahold of him and Jimbo. What about Tom Carter?

Perhaps I can meet up with some of you people thi summer in the Meadows (if I make it there - I should).

Stzzo- I did the via ferrata @ Nelson before I started climbing... and thought it was kinda fun. It can be a fun thing for non-climbers. It allows you ro see climbers from a vantage point that's not a butt shot & not a Yosemite/touron/binocular view- which of course instantly made me think "why am I doing the VF when I could be doing what that dude over there is doing" (having never climbed also never exposed me to the joys of flailing either)

Unfortunately there was a fatality on it last year...one of the contributing factors to it being on the market.

I hear there's a VF in KY w/a roof. Sounds like it could be worth trying. Apparently VF's are all over Europe, leftover from ww1?2? when they had to move soldiers over mtns en mass.

Ames is a wonderful climb. I will probably never be able to lead the first X-worthy pitch -- ultra-thin ice, unpro-ed, vertical, to an overhanging move (undercut feet), yikes. The first pitch keeps folks off the route's WI4 second and third pitch. So did I "do" Ames, really? Probably not. So don't get too excited!

Yep, the same Paul Revere and Yep again. I went to Pali. Dropped out the winter of 76 and moved to Kauai. Here is another from way back. Jack Davis and I boarding our plane for Hawaii. 4 pairs of baggies, two natural progression surfboards, 160 dollars in cash and all the tuna cans I could steal from my Moms kitchen. Stayed two years and only got beat up once.

I moved to Idyllwild in 79, could we have met there?

What a coincidence. Natural Progression - wow. Loved to hang out in there and wear their T shirts and fancy myself the little surfer girl. Only body surfed at the time but then got into windsurfing towards the end of high school (on and off for the next 20 years). I wanted to move to Maui but instead went to college right after high school and work right after college (boo!). That photo of you guys at the airport sure brings back great memories of what we looked like then, and what it was all about. I have my Pali cards somewhere, I'll have to dig them out.

I didn't start climbing until about 9 years ago - learned sport and bouldering and don't do much trad (except following and cleaning). Yeah! Stonemasters Reunion - what a blast. My husband (who has climbed for a long time but wasn't in So. Cal during the "formative years" of the Stonemasters) is good friends with some of that crew. Cool!!!

My Back Pages (Bob Dylan)

"Crimson flames tied through my ears
Rollin' high and mighty traps
Pounced with fire on flaming roads
Using ideas as my maps
"We'll meet on edges, soon," said I
Proud 'neath heated brow.
Ah, but I was so much older then,
I'm younger than that now.

Half-wracked prejudice leaped forth
"Rip down all hate," I screamed
Lies that life is black and white
Spoke from my skull. I dreamed
Romantic facts of musketeers
Foundationed deep, somehow.
Ah, but I was so much older then,
I'm younger than that now.

Girls' faces formed the forward path
From phony jealousy
To memorizing politics
Of ancient history
Flung down by corpse evangelists
Unthought of, though, somehow.
Ah, but I was so much older then,
I'm younger than that now.

A self-ordained professor's tongue
Too serious to fool
Spouted out that liberty
Is just equality in school
"Equality," I spoke the word
As if a wedding vow.
Ah, but I was so much older then,
I'm younger than that now.

In a soldier's stance, I aimed my hand
At the mongrel dogs who teach
Fearing not that I'd become my enemy
In the instant that I preach
My pathway led by confusion boats
Mutiny from stern to bow.
Ah, but I was so much older then,
I'm younger than that now.

Yes, my guard stood hard when abstract threats
Too noble to neglect
Deceived me into thinking
I had something to protect
Good and bad, I define these terms
Quite clear, no doubt, somehow.
Ah, but I was so much older then,
I'm younger than that now."

Heaven knows what he was talking about. But I like the version The Byrds did.

Werner; I believe I was letting one of the other climbers, I was climbing with, use my atc. I also give a GREAT hip belay also. :)

Nefarius; Thank you, I always enjoy climbing, even tho I have a few injuries, and cannot climb as hard as I use to. It's the friendships, and the comraderie that's shared, that make up a major portion of my enjoyment.

I'll enjoy climbing even if I get so crippled, that I can only climb 5.4! Luckily, I can still struggle up a 10b or c as long as it isn't a right side in OW,(Knee brace gets in the way) or some horrendous move that torques my R knee badly.

Some of them are accommodating and some couldn't care less until they see the slides and realize that it does make a huge difference in the photos. Earthy tones are great for diner with friends but not for photography. Sheesh, it's almost like they care more about the climbing than the pictures.
 From: Durango
 I find that helmets are another pain in the ass for climbing photos. They're usually white or red and neither is a great choice for the desert as red blends in and white blows out. Obviously no helmet is the best option for photos... to bad it's the worst option for desert towers.

From: Bozeman, Montana Brad, I'm more of a lurker unless I think I have something to add that's somehow been missed by all the erudite scholars that post to ST. I certainly will never forget our little meeting on sunflower tower and our slightly different approaches to analyzing crack difficulties. What a riot. The blond just got married, not to me, sigh, but she's still good fun.

I realize the pic doesn't quite show my face well enough to recognize me, so here is a shot that will not fail in that category. This one is at the first belay on Washerwoman.

Author: I just caught Michael Hjorth's post on climbing in Gothenberg, Sweden. I really like that city, with the cool industrial port, water taxis, and the main shopping street with unique shops. A very pleasant place to visit (with Volvo's diesel truck business, there are regular conferences there that all the diesel geeks like to attend. Everyone thinks we are roughing it.)
Roger Breedlove

 The first time I visited your country, I flew to Stockholm and spent the weekend doing the old city tourist thing and poked around the Vasa Museum, which clearly illustrates why Monarchs should not interfere in the design of ships. Funny that its purpose was to keep the Poles in line and it sank in the harbor on its maiden voyage—there is joke in there somewhere. I stayed in one of the hotels right on the water, across from the old city. Very pretty.

I also quickly realized that Swedes don't sound like Minnesotans: they sound like TV news casters. I wonder why Minnesotans talk the way they do?

I then drove from Stockholm to Gothenberg. I had expected to see some of your country. Instead I saw the highway as if from Ann Arbor to Grand Rapids, Michigan—a fine highway cut through a dense forest. Man, the glaciers cleaned Sweden's clock on that last run.

I stayed the night in Jönköping on Lake Vättern. It was a Sunday night, and I was a little worried that I might not find a place to eat. No worries, the receptionist tells me.

"The 'Twin Cities' is open," she says.

I startle a bit, and ask "You mean, like in Minnesota?"

She points the way. The place is a nice restaurant serving American classic cuisine and real martinis.

In Gothenberg, I get an afternoon and evening free to poke around, shop for some cool glass and hand woven throws to prove to my bride that I was working all week. As I sit in a sidewalk café with an American colleague, I comment that many of the women are beautiful, just like the Swedish Bikini Team commercial for Old Milwaukee beer, but they don't have blond hair.

Then I look more closely: blonde roots.

Nita,
this is about the best I can do...

this is my son Doug about three or four years ago out at NJC...

It is one of the only ones I have and I did not take it...

I am an "in the moment" sort and let what happens stick if it does and slide if it doesn't, then move on to the next place...

I took photo's for a living and taught it and then LEFT it all together...

hard to explain and this is not the place...

if you look back at any of my posts that include photo's of myself or son or friends, you'll notice that they are the same ones over and over and over...

only have a few...

(I'm feeling a little "long winded" obviously)...

OLDEST ONE EDIT:

this is the oldest one of me that I have (or at least that I know of... could be some somewhere I suppose... with relatives for instance)... and the reason I keep this one is as a reminder...

it's me about 8 or 9 years ago...

not at my best I might add...

it's been posted on ST a few times already I think...

not going into how I got that way...

Last Sunday after skiing we headed up wright's lake road to finish a book report due Monday. When finished, he began bouldering on the outcroppings. As I lay basking in the sun the lad exclaims, "Oooooo, I love the smell of granite! It's been way too long."

I almost wet myself laughing.

Here's a shot from the way-back machine (late winter--79?) when my buddy, Dave Hersey, and I, climbed a peak just to the east of San Jacinto, then skied down, climbed up San Jac, then skied down it as well. We'd taken the Tram from Palm Springs, so when we tumbled down the west side of the mountain into Idyllwild, we had no wheels waiting for us. Somewhere below Humber Park, we stuck out our thumbs, and the first car to come along--this huge Mercedes sedan--pulled right over and offered us a lift into town. Turns out it was this guy, Paul Runge--National League umpire--and his family. The sedan was so huge that it fit Paul, his wife, his two kids, his mother-in-law, Dave and me, and all our gear--and we weren't cramped. We went out to Michelli's (I miss that place) together for dinner, and they were very cool. They gave us their home phone number, and offered us tickets to any baseball game anywhere in the country, at any time. We were really appreciative of that, but neither one of us cared squat about baseball. Still...cool of them! Good times.

We were headed to the SE Arete from the west side, got lost (didn't go far enough right on Lion's), and ended up doing the punter original route for fear of running out of time.

Now that I know the descent, I'm looking forward to getting back there and doing some of the long routes.

Seems I'm always getting lost out there. We went to do Finger Rock and found out that, oddly enough, Finger Rock Trail does not go to Finger Rock.

We have family in Tucson, so I'm down there often.

I was actually having fun w/ the drill there. It was a breif lovely window in the middle of a bunch of otherwise wet weather (and a light rain on day two), so it wasn't so great for climbing, but it was really great to be outside at one of the prettiest places in Yosemite. And I did get a go on one of the routes on the mini-traxion after it had dried out and before the rain started up again on the second day...And I got to hand out with some great folks. Beats watching TV in the city.

Pool slacking is certainly an accident waiting to happen. I try to stay safe on it and it is very stable on the edges, plus as you can see I padded the side of the pool.

But I don't leave it up and ya pretty much shouldn't do it by yourself for the above mentioned reasons and my kids playing on it.

Took me a good hour and a half to go through this thread this morning. Just incredible all the faces that are on Supertopo and a truly amazing thread.

Author: Patrick Sawyer Still trying to find any pix of me. The past week has been gorgeous here in Ireland and the Met says the same for next week. I'd like to say that I have gotten down to Dalkey Quarry every day for the past nine days, but not quite.

climber On Wednesday I broke down and finally bought a pair of Red Chili Spirits Impact for €67.50 (about $90) as my final pair of Fires are beginning to tire and I'd left them at home and didn't want to make the side trip from the office to the home to the quarry. I'm not that impressed with them as I have been using them in Dalkey (very good granite there but the Red Chilis don't seem to smear all that well). They are suppose to be sticky rubber but I think my Fires smear better (and edge better).

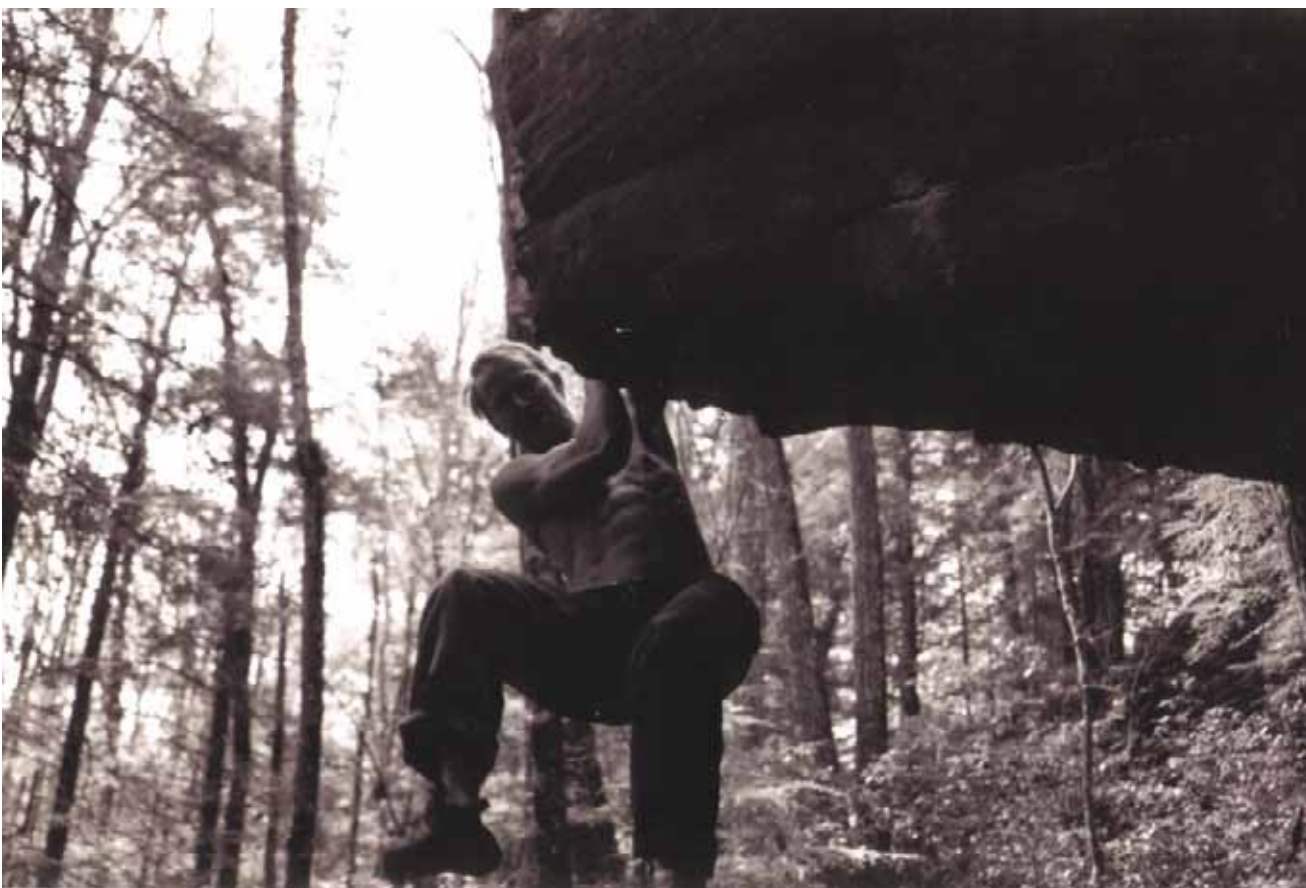

Do these things need to be broken in before they are good for face, slab and smearing? Any suggestions on good shoes for the Meadows and Valley?

I was going to ask that on a new thread but I figure to keep this one going.

I used to straddle a pipe bomb every day riding down the hill from campus. The danger of riding a fixee eventually smacked me upside the head. I gave up the hipster death trap. The flip-flop hob on my Fuji got turned to the free wheel side and I added a front and rear brake. Nice ride in the background though.

I have yet to crash mine, but being the accident prone person I am, I wouldn't rule it out as a future possibility. The Bianchi in the background of that picture is just a single speed. My other bike has a flip flop hub and its sitting on the fixed side. Fixed gears can be kinda scary, but being able to stop without brakes is pretty fun.

And thanks for the Welcome L - I've actually been lurking for around five years, making the occassional post and enjoying the banter but staying out of the fray for the most part. Been really fun 'getting to know' everyone and put faces with the names - and then to see Sushifest born has been awesome - WOW - so much for technology making us non-social hermits! Fun too to see that the flaming and namecalling has really been toned down since this thread and sushifest has taken off - hopefully it will last.
